MEDICINAL.

ACTIVE EXERCISE
and good food in plenty, tends to make children healthy. If children suffer, however, from Scrofulous, Skin or Scalp Diseases, if their blood is impure and pimples or boils appear, they should be given the right medicine. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures the best blood condition. It purifies the blood and renders the liver active as well as building up health and strength. Puffy, pale, weak children get a lasting benefit and a good start from the use of the "Discovery." It puts on whole-some flesh, and does not nauseate and offend the stomach like the various preparations of Cod Liver Oil. It's guaranteed to benefit or cure you, or your money is returned.

[Entered as second-class matter.]

When he looked with loving and dying eyes upon those for whom he had toiled and wrought, the knowledge of duty performed and rewarded, the knowledge that he had chained up the wolf which would otherwise have barked at the doors of wife and children, gave a repose to his last moments which even the laggards in life's battle will not begrudge him.

Few, except those who knew him in the abandon of the unwatched social hours, were aware how ripe and rich a scholar he was. Not alone learned in his profession, and up in all the politics of the day, but he had also explored literature to its sources and returned laden with its treasures.

"And over all romance and song
A classic beauty throwing
With laureled Clío at his side,
Her storied pages showing."

He was a thoroughly, fearless man, brave after the manner of the English race from which he sprang. It will be remembered by many that silly impressions prevailed before the war among our people as to the quality and character of their courage. We tried to persuade ourselves that dash, élan, were our characteristics, and that we English of the English had, by some mysterious alchemy, been converted into French. The war dispelled this silly fancy, and forced us to verify the old tradition of our race, that "while other tribes were made from earth and water, the gods had hewed the Saxon from the Harzberg rock." All who served with this man will tell you that he proved his pedigree, and upon every field his place was always near the flashing of the guns.

If there was one passion more than another, however, which dominated his soul, inspired and colored his life, it was his love for his State and his people. This deathless passion came to him in boyhood, attended him through manhood, and hovered around his dying pillow. He admired Virginia in his youth, when he proudly believed her to be the tribe of Judah, from whose hand the imperial scepter would never depart; he found he loved her most in adversity, when she crouched like an old wounded lioness licking her sores.

This man fought not for the "Constitutional freedom," nor any other barren jargon or dull formula of lawyers and doctrinaires; he would not and could not have died for the "rule in Shelley's case," or for a problem in geometry. Even slavery left by itself, and not associated with freedom for Virginia, would have never unhealed his sword. He fought for and sought independence and freedom forever, for himself and his people, from union with the North and their people. He fought that his country might not be their country, and their gods might not be his gods, and when he failed and the dire calamity came upon him, he accepted only what he could not avert, but never soiled his lips with false and fawning professions.

"Too honest, or too proud to feign
A love he never cherished,
Beyond Virginia's border land
His patriotism perished.
While others hailed in distant lands
The eagle's dusky pinion,
He only saw the royal bird
Stoop o'er his Old Dominion."

He loved too passionately to love broadly. To be part of a vast nation, rich enough to corrupt and strong enough to bully a planet, inspired no patriotism in him. Nothing could console him for seeing Virginia lost in this huge, ungodly, godless, and godless sea of excrement which the sewerage of Europe is discharging upon its shores.

In his last hours, when the reins had dropped from the hands of the enfeebled will, and the wandering thoughts had no guide but the heart, guided words of command were ever breaking from his lips, men were marching, squadrons forming and moving where—

"The rifles ring and the bullets sing,
And the black bomb whistled o'er us,
Where the flashing steel and the musket's peal,
All joined in the battle chorus."

Through all his dreams there seemed to shine upon him the sad face of the torn and crushed rose he had worn in his hair since a boy.

It was well known to all, except to the dull soul of cant and bigotry, that the astounding, the unjust termination of our war shocked or shook down the faith of many of the sincerest and devoted believers. It is possibly true that there are some who yet stare into the black abyss with blood-shot eyes, because this strange event still "passeth all understanding," but it is gratifying beyond expression to those who loved him to learn that the terrible sorrow which had vexed so many brains, distorted so many brows, and broken so many hearts had passed from him, that light had come to him from "that undiscovered country, from whose bowery no traveler returns," and that when he "crossed over the river he rested under the shade."

Kinsman, comrade, friend, farewell!
Warrenton, Va., April 4, 1893.

DENTISTRY.

VERY BEST
TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

Why should Dentistry cost as much as formerly? Clothing, shoes, flour, sugar, watches, pianos and a hundred other articles are cheaper, science and improved machinery having reduced the cost!

Science and improved machinery produce the BEST TEETH for $8.00. Grandfather's dentist charged four times as much for vastly inferior work, and there are dentists today who still cling to the traditions of grandfather's time. Compare our work and prices with one of those, and realize the progress of the age.

HERCULEAN EFFORT

FOR HOME PATRONAGE.

ANOTHER CRASH OF PRICES

AT THE FORCED SALE.

D. BENDHEIM, 316 KING ST.

Wednesday sounds the key note to the greatest slaughter sale of dry goods that ever was perpetrated in the history of the dry goods business. The trade event of the year, the trade event of twenty-five years, the trade event of the century is upon you. Draw near to us and stay with us while we give to you an insight into this most astounding slaughter of honest, reliable merchandise ever seen on the face of the earth. Grasp the situation fully and do the square thing by yourselves, and by us, in giving due regard and due consideration to what we tell to you here. Just one week ago we called your attention to our "Forced Sale." And we can say (with many thanks) it was most liberally patronized, for never was there such a rush in trade known in Alexandria, which shows that when the GAZETTE echoes a revolution of trade with a live merchant of Alexandria the people liberally respond, and instead of going to Washington they stay at home. We are too old a merchant to remain silent and look on. We are willing to cater for your patronage at prices where Washington is not in it. Stay home; be with us; we will make it interesting for you. This is an honest appeal.

We have been fortunate in securing an additional corps of efficient young ladies who will give prompt and polite attention to all who may favor us with their presence. Terms—Strictly cash. Persons desiring credit must agree to pay regular prices.
